COMPETENCY STANDARDS: SELF-ASSESSMENT TOOL

By reviewing your situation to the First Nations Housing Professionals Competency Standards you are measuring yourself against a standard of excellence for the best housing professionals.

The First Nations Housing Professionals Competency Standards include the professional knowledge and skills which have been identified as critical for a housing professional to provide efficient and effective housing management services to organizations and communities.

The knowledge and skills reflect the First Nations culture and environment and the challenges which face housing programs and staff. The competencies have been grouped into eight core domains of knowledge and skills with a listing of sub competencies. The competencies reflect the housing professional's role and responsibilities in an interactive cultural environment and requirement to maintain broad based knowledge and skills. While the competencies are not mandatory in practice, they are useful in a variety of ways:

- Conducting self-assessments to identify areas requiring professional development in recruitment and selection
- In performance management and evaluation
- serving as a basis for the development of curriculum for the First Nations Housing Professionals Program's courses
- Preparing Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition documentation
- Measuring work experience for certification
- Professional examination for certification

The competencies are general and therefore pertinent to all types of First Nations housing management positions and organizations.

The objective of this self-evaluation tool is to provide you with an opportunity to assess your current knowledge and skills to determine your development needs and measure your progress towards becoming a professional First Nations Housing Professional.

Instructions on how to use the FNPA Self-Assessment tool:

- Review the rating system.
- For each of the items listed, put an [√] in the column that corresponds the most to your knowledge and abilities as a housing manager.
- Note the items with a [√] in the Needs Improvement or Unacceptable column and record them in the applicable area of the My Competency Development Action Plan (CDAP; see Appendix 1).
- For each item listed in the My Competency Development Action Plan complete the required documentation. This information will help you take the results from your self-assessment and focus your future development needs.
- Individuals with minimal 'Needs Improvement' or 'Unacceptable' ratings and more than seven years of housing experience should consider using the Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition process to pursue certification.

Rating System:

EXCELLENT: You are performing in this area at a consistently superior level. This is one of your major strengths.

SATISFACTORY: Your performance is effective and occasionally you perform at a superior level.

NEEDS IMPROVEMENT: You sometimes perform well and on occasion fall below the standards expected. You require some development and change in order to improve performance to a consistent effective level.

UNACCEPTABLE: You require substantial development and change for this item in order to function effectively.

UNABLE TO RATE: You have not engaged in this activity.

You may also want to consider having your mentor or supervisor complete the assessment and provide an assessment of their perspective on your competencies, then meet with them and discuss the differences

YOUR SCORE CARD

- For each domain, tally the number of check marks [✓] for each of the ratings that correspond closest to your knowledge, skills and abilities in the ten core competencies and sub-component areas identified as critical for a housing professional.
- Once you have tallied the check marks in each domain, note the items with a [✓] in the ‘Needs Improvement’ or ‘Unacceptable’ columns and record them in the applicable area of the CDAP (see Appendix 1). For each item listed in the CDAP, complete the required documentation. This information will help you take the results from your self-assessment and focus your future professional development needs.
- Individuals with minimal ‘Needs Improvement’ or ‘Unacceptable’ ratings should consider using the Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition process to pursue certification as a First Nations Housing Professional.

What your score means:

1. If you have more than seven years as a housing manager and less than three ‘Needs Improvement’ or ‘Unacceptable’ ratings in any domain: Congratulations! You may be eligible to take the Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition (PLAR) path to certification as a First Nations Housing Professional. Please contact a representative from the FNHPA for more information about PLAR and certification opportunities based on the number of years experience you may have acquired and the knowledge you have gained over time. The FNHPA can help facilitate this process and help you reach this standard of excellence in housing management (see contact information below).
2. If you have more than three ‘Needs Improvement’ or ‘Unacceptable’ ratings in any domain: Since you have scored more than three ‘NI’ or ‘U’ ratings in some domains, determine the domain that has the most check marks in either the ‘NI’ or ‘U’ categories to further assess which areas require immediate attention. Please note that the FNHPA is developing information, professional development opportunities and certification courses to help First Nation Housing staff enhance and improve their knowledge and abilities in the competencies listed above in this Self-evaluation tool. Please contact a representative from the FNHPA for more information (see contact information below).
